

IMPROVING LIVES & OUR COMMUNITIES

Touching lives is the essence of what Goodwill does. Our mission is to improve communities by improving the lives of its people.

And, every day, we do just that. Our team members help people with disabilities and other barriers – such as poverty, language or lack of education – gain the skills and confidence they need to become more independent and to participate more fully as members of their community.

If you count all of our program participants, plus the people who receive free emergency vouchers for our stores, and all of our donors and shoppers, we touch thousands of lives each year. In fact, we served a total of more than 55,000 people through our 26 programs and services in 2009.

Thank you for helping us to carry out Goodwill's important work in your community. Your support truly makes a difference in people's lives.

HOW GOODWILL WORKS

People often ask, "How exactly does Goodwill work?" We can show you with the circle we call the Goodwill Promise.

When you donate to Goodwill, it creates jobs in our stores. When you shop, you support our programs, and we promise to improve lives and our communities because of your support.

Here's what we have accomplished in Tomah in 2009.

DONATING

Goodwill starts with the simple act of charity – donating. It's easy. Our friends donate new or gently used clothing, books, shoes, housewares, jewelry and other items they no longer need. And many of you in the Tomah area did that in 2009.

- ◆ 23,226 donations totaling 929,023 pounds - that's 465 tons.

In selling these items, we generate funds to help people in your community and also keep tons of materials out of the landfills. Thanks for helping us "Protect the Planet."

JOBS/IN-STORE TRAINING

Your donations create jobs in our retail stores/training centers. We have team members who greet you at the donation door and help you unload the items you no longer need. Other team members sort and price the donated goods, stock shelves and check out your purchases at the registers. Some of these jobs provide wonderful opportunities, too, for people with disabilities and other barriers to employment who come to us for training. It takes a lot of people to run a store, and these jobs put dollars into our local communities.

At the Tomah Goodwill in 2009:

- ◆ 30 team members earned paychecks.
- ◆ 144 people received vocational training, totaling 9,629 hours.

SHOPPING

Our goal is to make your shopping experience an enjoyable one. We offer quality merchandise at moderate prices, with inventory changing daily. All of our stores feature a mix of new merchandise (closeouts or overstocks from manufacturers, for example) and donated goods in a contemporary retail atmosphere. When you shop in our Goodwill stores, you can find some real bargains to stretch your budget. You also have the satisfaction of knowing your purchases support programs and services that help people in your community.

In Tomah in 2009:

- ◆ 85,713 customer transactions.
- ◆ 9 local social service agencies distributed Goodwill vouchers to 993 people for $24,813 worth of free emergency clothing and household items in their time of need.

PROGRAMS & SERVICES

As a not-for-profit human services organization, Goodwill uses the revenue from our stores to pay our team members, and to support a wide variety of innovative programs and services that help people. These programs create jobs, offer training, or address educational or developmental issues – sometimes in collaboration with community partners.

Through our Community Development Program, the following area agencies placed 144 people in our store for job training and skill development:

Attic Correctional Services, Inc.

Community Corrections Employment Program (CCEP)

Cross Roads Program - At-Risk Students

Department of Corrections - Adult/Youth Community Service Program

Department of Corrections - Probation and Parole Corrective Sanctions Program
